Nasalis

LLSAN

- elevates upper lip and wing of nose
- two strips: lateral and medial
- contracting elevates wings of the nose and the middle portion of upper lip

Levator Labii Superioris Alaeque Nasi (LLSAN)

Orbicularis Oris

- mediolus appears as a small fleshy mound at each end of the lips
- shadowed and tonal may catch along bottom border; looks like a little tuck of skin
- fibrous tissue around perimeter of lips catches highlights

Depressor Labii Inferioris:

- draws lower lip downward slightly, exposing lower teeth during contraction

Buccinator:

- muscular wall of cheeks
- Origin near first and second molars of maxilla and the mandible and pre-zygo-mandibular raphe

Depressor anguli oris:

- presses down angle of mouth (modiolus)
- insertion is below insertion of zygomatic major
- antagonist to zygomatic major
- grimace/sadness/disapproval

Mentalis:

- fleshes out bony part of chin, giving oval shape
- contracts: pulls skin of chin upward, pushes lower lip upward and outward

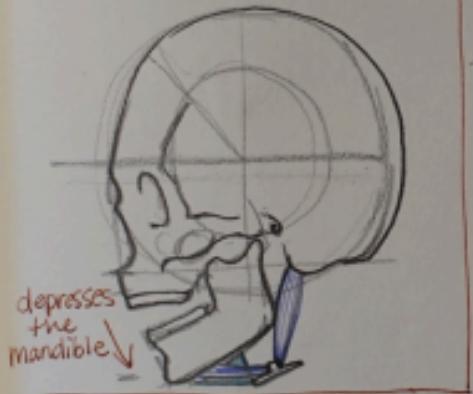

- pulls straight back, compressing cheeks and lips
- dimples created around outer corner of mouth
- used in wind brass instruments
- contempt, annoyance, smirking
- fibers between upper and lower lips are crisscrossed
- partially covered by masseter

5/23

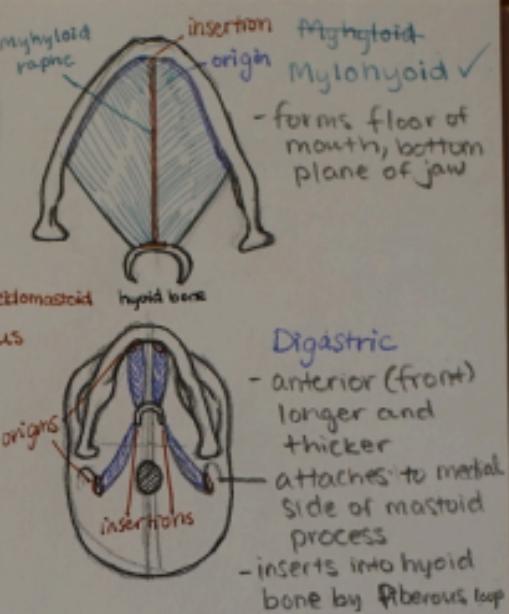

- digastric on top
- lower/depress mandible
- elevate hyoid bone during swallowing and speaking

Sternocleidomastoid

- Space between straps is lesser supra-clavicular fossa
- sternal tendons visible when head is turned or tilted
- merge midway up

Digastric

- anterior (front) longer and thicker
- attaches to medial side of mastoid process
- inserts into hyoid bone by fibrous loop

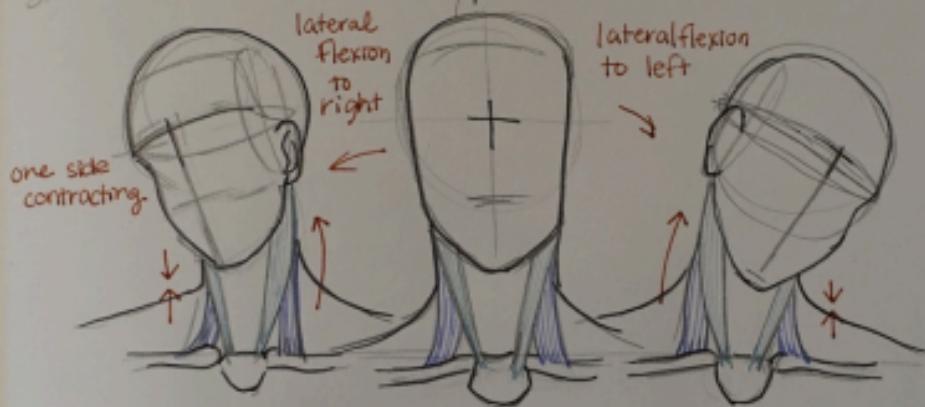

- observe stretching or compression to convey tension or action

5/23

gave up on blackwing

- both sides contract, head bends forward
- posterior fibers on both sides contract, head moves up and back
